CÁMARA DE DIPUTADOS BUSCA CÓMO ACTUAR DESPUÉS DE MAGNICIDIO DE COLOSIO

Cómo la cámara de diputados reaccionará ante el magnicidio de Colosio

REPORTER #02: GERARDO GARIBAY PIÑÓN

IMÁGEN DE LA CÁMARA DE DIPUTADOS

Después del asesinato de el excandidato del PRI, Luis Donald Colosio, la cámara de diputados busca qué rutas puede tomar para reducir las repercusiones. Uno de nuestros reporteros acudió a la misma Cámara de Diputados para conseguir más información sobre el tema.

Primariamente, el puesto de Luis Donald Colosio ha sido cedido a Ernesto Zedillo, secretario de Educación Pública. México esta pasando una crisis económica como consecuencia de el asesinato de Colosio. Los senadores de la Cámara de Diputados discuten pedir una inversión de 5 millones de dólares de Estados Unidos para mejorar la seguridad para candidatos presidenciales y así evitar que un evento similar vuelva a suceder e intentar mejorar la transparencia en el gobierno.

La violencia y confusión en el país también están aumentando debido al magnicidio de Colosio. El 28 de septiembre, después de haber asistido a una reunión junto a 180 diputados, el secretario del PRI, José Francisco Ruiz Massieu recibió un disparo intentando ingresar a su automóvil. Tras dicho atentado, fue trasladado a un hospital privado. Sin embargo, la herida de bala en el cuello provocó una gran pérdida de sangre, causando su muerte solo una hora después de su llegada al hospital.

BREAKING NEWS! SPAIN IS JOINING THE COUNTRIES.

Finding one way to health

REPORTER #13: ANTONIO ARIZPE

WHAT YOU DONT KNOW ABOUT ARTIFICIAL SWEETENERS

Today, another session of the United Nations was discussed. The topic of discussion being; artificial sweeteners. Today's session started with a debate in which two different alliances with different points of view endeavored to find a solution to the pressing issue at hand.

On one side, we have the delegations of Saudi Arabia, Mexico, New Zealand, Singapore and more delegations who agreed on the same solution of making it mandatory for all the countries to financially support the upcoming campaigns. The delegation of Mexico proposed the idea of searching for private and public organizations such as, IFF (International Flavors & Fragrances), an organization that manufactures and markets beverage, food, health, biosciences, scent and pharma solutions, and complementary products, such as cosmetic active and natural health ingredients.

On the other side, there are the delegations of Indonesia and Malaysia, who gathered more countries in their favor to form an alliance to stop the production of artificial sweeteners. This delegation prefers to remove them from the market or dedicate more time to investigating more about the product that is causing so much controversy around the world. All in all, these delegations are deeply concerned with the increase in the production of artificial sweeteners.

The delegate of Spain has proposed two more solutions, to which all the delegates of the Spain alliance agreed to, except Mexico. Nonetheless, after a discussion between the Spain alliance and the Mexican delegation where advantages were exchanged, the Mexican delegation finally agreed with the proposal.

Spain's delegation proposal was to implement taxes on all foods and drinks with sugar and give personalized diets for people with the help of nutritionists who were willing to change the world and address the problem. These diets are personalized to fit the needs of the individual, taking into account factors such as age or basic needs. Spain proposes to all the delegations to join and find more solutions as well as proposing the idea to teach people from a young age the disadvantages of artificial sweeteners. The Spanish delegation argues that this solution should be implemented in basic education at home and also at school by including the topic in a class or making a school subject that educates children on healthy eating habits.

THERE IS A CRISIS

REPORTER #05: DARÍO WISE

FIFA WORLD CUP
UNITED STATES CANADA MÉXICO

THIS IS THE BRANDING FOR THE UPCOMING WORLD CUP

A crisis has struck the FIFA committee! While voting for the hosting country for the World Cup in 2018, Mexico committed an act of corruption so their country would be chosen to be the host of the 2026 World Cup. The amount is not known but the money was given to 5 of the FIFA's top board members.

Why would a country want to host the biggest sporting event in the world? Although it may seem like hosting the World Cup may be not beneficial for the country it is quite the opposite in some ways. Hosting the World Cup comes with a lot of benefits, the biggest one being the economic boost. How? The country hosting the World Cup gains economic benefits by the tourists buying hotel rooms, food, tickets, transportation, and more. As well as the job opportunities the different people have because of this huge event. Although this is a short term benefit a long-term investment/benefit is international goodwill. Hosting promotes positive global perception and fosters diplomatic relations, this is why countries are going to the extent of cheating to be the hosting country.

On the other hand, hosting the World Cup could also come with some implications. For example, Questionable investment: the investment required to host the World Cup may outweigh the potential benefits leading to losses (financial wise). Finally, Misallocation of resources: hosting the World Cup can divert resources from more pressing needs that the country should be focusing more on. But countries prefer to take the risk and hope their countries don't come into these types of problems.

During the moderate debate I heard different ideas and opinions from different representatives. Few solutions were said from the previous moderate debate. For example, during the debate they mentioned Fines up to one million dollars plus (depending on the gravity of the corruption). This will affect the Government financially. The committee will also be implementing a participation ban for any country tournament including 2 world cups (8 years). This will make countries think twice before trying to bribe or other illegal activities. Finally, This committee is planning to involve law enforcement and charge all people involved in the corruption with 6 months of house arrest or years in jail depending on their involvement. According to the committee, the last two solutions are the best solution of the three mentioned. This is because governments can afford a couple of millions of dollars but not being able to participate in the biggest stage in the world and other tournaments affects the look on the country. This is because the ticket sales will decrease massively and income received from the national team will be next to none and trust in the government will also decrease massively.

To conclude, the solutions mentioned from the FIFA committee representatives seem to be intense and precise. This is great since this problem is ongoing and very present in modern day sports.

IMMUNS ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES (OAS)

Proposed solutions regarding trust in elections, vote turnout, and election fraud

REPORTER #09: JOSÉ CLAUDIO HINOJOSA

ONLINE VOTING SYSTEM PROPOSAL

Delegates' discussions of possible solutions

The OAS committee discussed possible solutions involving trust in elections and other controversies within the voting process in Latin American countries. The delegate of Argentina's stated solutions during the debate were: biometric scans for voting, which have a good reputation and would make society believe that votes were genuine, making the legitimacy much better. They also stated that voting should be more transparent, such as counting votes, and also make open voting systems in bordering countries so more immigrants can vote.

The delegate of Bolivia also believed that making voting more transparent and openly accessible would be beneficial for the people because it would feel safer and easier to vote. The delegate of Peru expressed thoughts about how people felt about elections and voting, suggesting that people should feel as safe and comfortable as possible to ensure a better atmosphere within the country.

The delegate of Nicaragua suggested more solutions to target the economic situation of the people. Economic situations affect voting through inaccessibility and the influence of power; therefore, it's important to focus on these when coming up with solutions. They also stated that immigrants and other groups are racially judged, and they suggest that the committee should use and create groups that target corruption and make voting easier in bad economic situations.

Many delegates spoke about immigrants or refugees and how a stable voting system with the ideas discussed would work. The main speakers on this topic were the delegates of Colombia, Cuba, and El Salvador. The delegate of Colombia and the delegate of El Salvador initially stated that people who immigrate from another country should have the right to vote. The delegate of Colombia followed their previous statement by saying that after six months of being in the country, they would be able to vote. The delegate of Cuba stated that since immigrants living in a country are not legally part of it, the legalization of the person's nationality makes voting easier and gives them their voting rights. The delegate of Argentina stated that creating an open voting system in neighboring countries would help immigrants with the voting process. The delegation of Trinidad and Tobago emphasized the importance of exercising the right to vote and analyzing social demographics for better understanding and easier voting by creating workshops to achieve all of this.

Many delegates discussed the possibility of an online voting system where people would be asked

The delegate of the Bahamas and the delegate of Mexico introduced the idea of community funds with NGOs or a monetary fund to help people's economic situations and also create a stable and trustworthy voting system. The delegate of Uruguay, the delegate of Nicaragua, and the delegate of the Bahamas stated that vote-buying is a thing that should be solved and threats should be acted upon. The delegate of the Bahamas proposed the UN's involvement and sanctions they can make if this happens, and the delegate of Mexico also stated that the UN should intervene in voting systems. Delegates such as the delegate of Argentina responded with transparency, believing for their name, personal information, being required to have an ID or social security number, and the candidate they were voting for, as stated by the delegation of Cuba. The delegate of the U.S. and the delegate of Argentina expressed similar ideas: the U.S. proposed a photo ID and building more places to take photo IDs so it's easier to vote. On the other hand, Argentina restated their biometric voting system, specifically fingerprint scanners, and most of the committee also agreed and gave their point of view on the idea. The delegation of Cuba added that NGOs should be implemented for online voting for more security and give IDs to people in centers or schools.

Conclusion

All of the delegates within the committee expressed similar solutions and proposals for solving people's trust in elections, vote turnout, and election fraud. Although some had concerns or doubts about certain ideas like trust and safety in online voting, online voting in less developed areas, and more, most of the committee members, with great participation, managed to corroborate their ideas to discuss and improve the main points during the debate to finalize solutions on the topic.

A HORROR MOVIE, OR A HORROR REALITY?

Kidnapped Hollywood celebrities

REPORTER #14: ANA REGINA ZAPIEN

EXAMPLE OF THE ROOM WHERE ACTORS ARE

Around 3:00 pm, a report came that three of the most recognized actors among young adults were missing. This list of actors is made up of Timothée Chalamet, Ryan Gosling and Emma Stone. It is said that the reason they were kidnapped is that each of them knows one of the biggest secrets that the Hollywood industry has; but who would be interested in obtaining or saving that information?

With this unexpected disappearance, fans, family members, co-workers and relatives of the young actors are going crazy. After the Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD) notified the public that they were missing, the alleged kidnapper uploaded a video to Twitter claiming the number one trending spot. In the video, the faces of these fan-favorite celebrities could not be seen, but their voices could be distinguished, and the fans and family members, upon recognizing the voices, realized that it was them. This short but critical video included images and audio that made the audience think about what was really happening. It seemed as if it was some kind of "cult" that these celebrities were involved in. The description of the video said something about how badly these victims were acting, and that they would stay in that place until their director stops talking about things he doesn't know about. Most people didn't understand this message, but fans have already drawn their conclusions about who may be doing this.

Until now, rumors say that the fanatic who kidnapped them was sent by director Martin Scorsese who is going to cast them for a film about Hollywood's biggest secrets. It is not shocking for some to imagine that Scorsese is the one behind this, right now, his location is unknown, and his family doesn't know where he is.

His way of being as a director has always been to put authenticity, originality, and transparency above all. And although we know that this admired director denies forced diversity within films, it is known that he knows how to choose the representatives of his characters very well, could that be the reason why these stars are kidnapped?

There was also a report that the victims had received a death threat, their families alerted Keeping Up with the Hollywoodashains that each one had been threatened anonymously.

Hollywood directors were informed about the problem and came together to come up with an objective and successful solution. New information was notified to them; After the same Twitter account uploaded a second video, two girl fans hacked the video account and managed to get the location of where the actors are. This video showed the actors' faces with puffy eyes and blue lips; Thanks to that, it was known that the celebrities were subjected to a substance that made them temporarily amnesiacs since they supposedly knew many secrets.

The solutions proposed by Clint Eastwood, Charlie Chaplin, and Stanley Kubrick, among others, are to keep these girls and the actors safe, find a cure for the recovery of the actors, and put cameras near the location where they are to record if there is any anomaly, and track this account on Twitter to see what's happening. How much longer will we have to wait to see our favorite celebrities in action again? Only one knows, and that is the kidnapper.

FROM DESTRUCTION TO HOPE: THE US SENATE'S HIGHWAY TO SAFETY

From Washington, D.C. Amid the September 11 attacks aftermath, the U.S. Senate works intensely, concentrating its efforts on addressing Islamophobia and security.

REPORTER #04: EDUARDO ARROYO

911 MEMORIAL PICTURE OF RESCUERS SAVING A CIVILIAN

This period has seen an unusual collaboration between Republicans and Democrats, the opposite poles of political division. Leading both parties's resolution papers in this united effort are Senator Hillary Clinton of the Democratic Party and Senator Kit Bond from the Republican Party, who have been key figures in connecting the gap between the two parties and giving the nation what it needs to achieve unity.

Part of these efforts is Senator Mark Dayton from the Democratic Party. He has played a crucial role in promoting peace and understanding towards Muslim communities, emphasizing the importance of distinguishing between the acts of terrorists and the beliefs of an entire religion. This initiative from the Democrats has been crucial to preventing the spread of anger and fear. A significant part of this Senate's work has also involved ensuring the safety and care of the survivors of the attacks. Through coordinated efforts across agencies and organizations, survivors are receiving the necessary support and assistance during this challenging time. Care packages and personal assistance, are topics where no resistance from the senate's opinion is to be shown. Also, there was a strong desire to make the aviation industry more secure, involving training pilots and making safety modifications on planes. In a recent interview, when asked about the collaborative spirit within the Senate, Senator Hillary Clinton stated, "I believe everyone is contributing equally." This statement shows the collective commitment to address the immediate concerns as well as the unity and strength the US Senate has in reaction to these matters, something that is not seen often when entering the political debates between senators.

As the Senate continues its work, the emphasis on solving Islamophobia and working on national security offers a light of hope in a time of national tragedy. The leadership shown by figures like Clinton, Bond, Murray, and Dayton signals a strong force that pushes toward a more united approach in tackling the challenges we face. On top of everything, will parties keep negotiating peacefully? And if not, when will their humble intentions fade away?

IMMUNS 2024 HUMAN RIGHTS COUNCIL (UNHRC)

During Sessions

REPORTER #08: MAURICIO DE LA GARZA

CALIFORNIA INVESTIGATES AMAZON'S TREATMENT OF WORKERS DURING PANDEMIC

As stated in Article #1, the purpose of these meetings held by the Human Rights Council at IMMUNS 2024 is “to address the rights of prisoners and prison conditions.” (background paper)

In the first session I reported on, delegates representing various countries expressed their countries' stances and their proposed solutions threw reading their position papers. It was rapidly clear that the whole committee had similar opinions regarding the rights of prisoners as they all were looking to improve living conditions and rights for prisoners. The delegates of Mexico, the UK, and Sudan proposed solutions such as investing in this issue, making websites where prisoners could report abuse, creating media campaigns, teaming up with NGOs, and Improving hygiene inside prisons, among many other solutions that would help protect prisoners.

Toward the proposed solutions by the delegates, all delegates reacted in favor, and as the Moderated Debate started the delegates of Qatar and Switzerland began developing action plans by merging and improving ideas with other delegations. They later joined action plans to create one concrete action plan in which the majority of the committee members collaborated by proposing or debating between ideas.

In an interview with the delegate of Guatemala, the delegate informed that he thought this issue was very bad as “prisoners are constantly getting violated from their human rights and abused, not receiving proper education, nor an acceptable hygienic living place.” The delegate also stated how these issues should be prioritized by the UN and that this session was important to try and solve the worldwide problem concerning prisoner rights.

Another interview with the delegate of Afghanistan demonstrated how even if Afghanistan had little funds to support this cause the delegate was willing to use some or team up with organizations and other delegations to create a plan.

CRISIS! As the session was shaping up to be a success crisis struck. The delegates received the news from an article that Amazon workers were striking. The reason for this strike was that their rights as humans weren't being respected inside the Amazon factory as they had no medical insurance and they felt that they weren't getting the freedoms and rights they deserved which caused a 500,000 people strike against the famous company of Jeff Bezos.

When presented with this crisis, delegates shifted their moderated debate from prisoner rights to Amazon employees crisis in order for this crisis to be addressed as quickly as possible. Many delegates such as Pakistan, Qatar, Japan, and others started discussing possible solutions such as sending private investigators at random times to check that companies gave the required rights and freedoms to their employees. As sessions are running out it is now time for the delegates to start finding solutions and create a clause that will hopefully ensure and protect the rights that all human beings.

RUTHLESS DICTATOR OR REVOLUTIONARY HERO?

Fidel Castro was accused of committing crimes against humanity by the International Criminal Court (ICC)

REPORTER #10: PATRICIO ELIZONDO

FIDEL CASTRO SMOKING A CIGAR

When you think of Fidel Castro, what do you think of? Some look at him as a ruthless dictator who killed his own people, some see him as a revolutionary hero who saved the Cuban people from “Yankee Imperialism” and some may not even know who he is. Castro’s battle against the prosecution of the ICC, featuring witnesses such as Huber Matos, Che Guevara, Osmany Cienfuegos, Castro himself, and more, will certainly answer that question.

The Accusations

Specifically, Castro was accused of (but not limited to): murder, torture, inhumane treatment, usage of weapons, targeting civilians, denying basic freedom and rights, and more. Castro’s regime also notoriously imprisoned political rivals and regular civilians. These prisons had horrible conditions, where they tortured the prisoners and denied them basic rights.

Huber Matos’ Story

Huber Matos was a prominent member of the party and a close friend of Castro. However, Huber left the party after it began adopting Communist ideals. Castro accused him of being a traitor, and he was unjustly sentenced to 20 years in prison. When asked about the conditions in his prison, he said “I starved, I was punched, I was tortured, it was terrible”. He finished his testimony by saying “He said Cuba would be democratic, and he lied, he manipulated all of us!”

An Optimistic Side

While it is true that Castro and his regime may have literally been killing their own population, one should also look at the positive reforms Castro achieved for the island nation. According to an anonymous defender taking part in the case (and proven by sources), Cuban literacy rates grew from 50% to 99% while Castro was in power. Also, 13% of Cuban GDP goes into funding education, and Cuba's free healthcare and social programs are ranked as one of the highest in Latin America. Castro's right-hand man, Ernesto 'Che' Guevara stated "Cuba was made a better place by Castro, free Castro!" Castro himself said "Not one aspect not one aspect of Cuba was worse after I left"

Osmany Cienfuego's Story

Osmany Cienfuegos is the brother of Camilo Cienfuegos, a prominent member of the revolutionary movement. Camilo was inexplicably killed by Castro, but it is speculated that Castro was worried Camilo's personal popularity was rivaling his.

Constitution did justify most of his actions. Also, the defense believes it unfair that Castro alone is being tried, and not the other revolutionaries and collaborators, as Castro did not solely work alone. When on the stand, Castro denied any claims of human rights abuses, and when asked about the "Supposed concentration camps around the country" Castro simply answered "Supposed".

Who is Right?

Looking at this case, Castro may seem like he is two different people. While Huber Matos calls him a manipulative and cold-blooded killer, Cecilia Sanchez calls him "A symbol of hope and

ERNESTO "CHE" GUEVARA

Osmany testified in court by saying "I urge you to punish Castro... Over 14,000 have been killed by Castro and his party". He also famously stated, "He chose to kill my brother, enough is enough!" Osmany argues it is simply not moral to let this killer walk free again.

The Defense

Castro's defense has mentioned several good points in favor of Castro. For example, a defender brings up "The pressure from the revolution and the constitution justified his acts". The Cuban constitution is admittedly harsh, and the prosecution argues Castro abused the Cuban constitution for his own benefit. However, technically speaking, the

CHAOS ENSUES AROUND THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY AS THE THREAT OF WORLD WAR LOOMS OVER AFTER IRANI EARTHQUAKES

After the reveal that the 7.1 magnitude earthquake in Iran was artificially created by the US and in fact was one of the Anonymous' leaked documents, the Islamic Republic of Iran moves with demands and threats for the US.

REPORTER #03: SANTIAGO RANGEL

A CLASSIFIED NUMBER OF CITIES IN IRAN WERE DESTROYED BY THE ARTIFICIAL EARTHQUAKES. OVER 17,000 PEOPLE DIED, THOUSANDS MORE DISPLAYED FROM THEIR HOME.

After the earthquake shattered the lives of the Iran population, the revelation that it was an attack orchestrated by the US to stop Iran's nuclear arm program, the latter also came clean and revealed their allegiance with the Anonymous hackers and the reason behind the US cyber-attack "...They were threatening us... of not stopping and continue attacking, and the Anonymous was the only to reveal that to the public, and to other countries and committees." declared the Delegate of Iran. With both sides coming clean of their actions, immediate threats and demands for both sides increase tensions.

The committee rushed to assemble an aid campaign and understanding between the two nations, proposing the US send reparations for the damages caused to the Irani cities and international efforts to safely display the refugees into neighboring countries. Iran demanded the sign of a Peace treaty where total surrender and promise of ceasing all military activities were expected from the US. Whilst the delegate of US refused the peace treaty, he did agree on sending $300 million dollars in reparations, with the condition of Iran handing over the Anonymous for breaching government files.

The committee meanwhile proposed the US send reparations for the damages caused to the Irani cities and international efforts to safely display the refugees into neighboring countries, as well as sanctioning the nation for its new warfare technology. Whilst the delegate of US refused the peace treaty, he did agree on sending $300 million dollars in reparations, with the condition of Iran handing over Anonymous for breaching government files. When Iran refused this motion, the thin peace was shattered.

The Anonymous then declared it would target US allies if aggressive actions against Iran were taken. This sparked wrath from part of the US for its national security and privacy were now breached, made only worse with the news of massive protests against the Biden administration made by the US citizens for the government's actions in the Iran earthquakes. To de-escalate tensions, the delegate of France made the bold proposal of postponing the 2024 US presidential elections, to contain any other potential threads the Anonymous could access.

The menace of Iran and the cybercriminals threatening the globe's finances and the US's power to simulate earthquakes caused the committee to split between those in favor of focusing on the aid campaigns and those in favor of securing the global economy. Yet another crisis ensued when paranoia between the delegates set in as the realization that sanctioning one of the economic powers of the world could further damage the economy. The US delegate announced its final warning of handing over the Anonymous or ceasing all economic aid to Iran, with the latter also responding in an aggressive manner. Tensions rose and the threat of WWII was worryingly discussed by the delegates.

Whilst the committee discusses the economic, social, refugee and military crisis, the Iran population remains in suffering, waiting in the rubbles of destroyed cities.

GA COMMITTEE STARTS TO SEE THE MOST EFFECTIVE SOLUTIONS

REPORTER #07: VALERIA REYNA

TREATY ON THE NON-PROLIFERATION OF NUCLEAR WEAPONS

One of the delegations proposed global nuclear disarmament because it is essential in order to reduce the risk of nuclear conflict and promote international peace and security, emerging technologies, mutilating verification mechanisms, promotion of national security culture, and NPT.

The delegation of China considers that in order for the committee to achieve their goal of stopping nuclear disasters, the NPT treaty, whose objective is to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons and weapons technology and promote cooperation in the peaceful use of nuclear weapons, should be strengthened for the creation of other treaties.

The delegation of the U.K. is worried that if the delegation of Pakistan collapses because of its current economic and political situation, the nuclear weapons will get into the hands of the fanatics of the former government and military, and the nuclear weapons may or may not be sold to terrorists, so the U.K. suggests having a task force ready with the IAEA (the International Atomic Energy Agency) to secure nuclear weapons and the hopefully not inevitable case of Pakistan collapsing.

RUSSIA WILL SEND A BOMB TO THE UNITED STATES

Security Council

REPORTER #01: XIMENA GONZÁLEZ

ATOMIC BOMBS PROJECTS IN UNITED STATES

At the last minute, the peacekeepers' problems are completely put aside since there is a first crisis. United States is in a bomb project but they are not just any bombs, they are bombs never seen before, we mean that these bombs are too powerful than those that have previously been used, according to Jonathan Peterson, one of the main scientists of the project says that these bombs are " "Ten times more powerful than the most up-to-date research in the world." In addition to all this, Russia activated the nuclear storage facilities in Cuba and was threatened, because it thinks that the United States at any moment can send a bomb to Rudder, so Russia threatened the United States with send a bomb. Although Russia fought for transparency in nuclear technology, the United States raised the potential that this could have to increase the threat of proliferation.

The delegates do not give clear solutions, they want to negotiate with Russia to end the threat. Russia mentioned something about an agreement with the delegation of United States for abandoning the bombs, the French delegation 2 ask Russia what kind of commitment it would like to make with the United States in order to reach an agreement with us but nothing was formalized exactly , the delegates began to look for more solutions to crises when suddenly they interfered with another crisis. North Korea attacked the United States.

After the revelation of the United States' bomb projects, North Korea has moved forward by dropping a series of atomic bombs on military bases in the United States, fears of a possible world war are increasingly closer since Russia launched a direct nuclear threat to the United States and the United States responded by deploying marine fleets to Florida, which is relatively close to Cuba. The delegates are also concerned about the safety of the people because although it was in military bases, they fear that a bomb could approach the citizens. The delegates also try to make North Korea stop sending missiles, this for the security of all countries.

CRISIS AT THE ROMAN SENATE

Can the fire be prevented?

REPORTER #06: DANIEL CONDE

THE GREAT FIRE OF ROME

The senators will have to put the fate of Julius Caesar aside for a while, as the Roman Senate has just been struck with a crisis! The senate has not been able to respond to the people of Rome on what they will do about Caesar, which has raised lots of tension on the streets between the people who are for and against Caesar. Many protests and fights have occurred in the silence of the senate, and now the people crave for an answer. A group of Caesar supporters have come together, and are now heading towards the Roman Senate with the intention of burning it down.

There is one hour left until the Senate is burnt down. The senators however, seem unbothered by this, and they continue to argue about the Julius Caesar matters. The senate is in chaos, yet not for the reasons it should be. For the first time in the senate, someone has suggested accepting Julius Caesar's letter, making Julius Caesar step down from the senate, as long as Pompey does so first.

There are 45 minutes until the Senate is burnt down. The senators have finally grasped the situation, and began to think about what will be done. In an interview, Curio explains the main solutions that are clashing between the strongest debaters of the Senate, Marcus Brutus and Gaius Trebonius. Brutus' solution is to gather civilians who oppose Julius Caesar to fight off the Caesar supporters trying to burn down the senate. Trebonius' solution is to flee the Senate and continue matters elsewhere.

There are 30 minutes until the Senate is burnt down. The senators haven't made much progress, as their bias on Julius Caesar is still interfering in the debate, and blinding them from the ideas of each other because of their position on the previous topic. Curio suggests the most controversial solution the senators had seen yet, resulting in screams and insults being thrown around the senate for the next 20 minutes. He argued that if they gave the Caesar supporters what they wanted, they wouldn't have a reason to attack the Senate. "Let's make Julius Caesar the Emperor or Rome!" he said.

There are 15 minutes until the Senate is burnt down. The senators have not come any closer to finding a solution, and they have only been able to agree on one thing: they have to flee the Senate. Trebonius argued that whether they want or don't want Caesar to come to power, they will still be killed by the Caesar supporters, as it is too late to give a response that will satisfy both the senate and the supporters.

One hour has passed. The senators flee the Roman Senate, as chaos continues to arise in the city of Rome. The Roman Senate has gone down in flames.
